ARNOULT'S FRENCH READER.-A Pronouncing Reading-book of the French language, particularly calculated to render the speaking of French easy to the American student, and grounded on a new system of comparative French and English pronunciation; with synoptical tables illustrating the whole kingdom of French sounds, compared with English sounds, including consonants, in which vowels and dipthongs are divided into natural families each under its respective standard or father sound, generally an English and French element. Part First. By E. Arnoult, graduate of the University of Paris, and Instructor in the French Language in Harvard University, Cambridge. Boston: Hickling, Swan, & Brewer.

This is the title of a work of rare excellence on comparative French and English orthoepy. It is commended by the Boston press in unqualified terms, and, from the attention we have been able to bestow upon it, we think it deserves even more than the high praise it has received. Its leading purpose is to teach the true pronunciation of French to the American student of that language. The purpose is certainly a most important one, and the facility and perfection with which it is achieved by Dr. Arnoult's method, as defined and enforced in this volume, entitle him to the lasting gratitude and applause of American scholars.

Dr. A.'s method is based on the fact, not generally recognized; that, with but three exceptions, all the native sounds of the French tongue are found in the English, and consists accordingly of an elaborate and manifold translation of every French sound into a corresponding English one. This is the scheme of the work, but suggests no adequate idea of its incomparable meri.s. The introduction, in which the author minutely develops and explains his system, is a very masterly and luminous specimen of philological analysis. The grasp and acuteness of thought it displays are truly wonder-We cordially agree with the Boston critics at this admirable work will make an epoch in the teaching of the French tongue.

Dr. Arnoult, many years ago, resided in the vicinity of Louisville, and those of our citizens who knew him will remember him as a high-hearted, genial, and most accomplished gentleman. His friends here will be gratified but not surprised to hear of him as one of the most valued and admired of the Professors of the first College in America.

KENTUCKY STATE FAIR .- R. W. Scott, Esq., the Corresponding Secretary of the Kentucky State Agricultural Society, gives notice that Mr. W. E. Milton, of this city, and Messrs. Allen & Bell, of Henderson, will gratuitously attend to the shipment and receipt of all stock and articles to the Fair, but no responsibility for loss or damage or expense will be incurred.

Extra steamers will run during the Fair betwee Evansville and Henderson, connecting with the Indiana railroads, thus ensuring a conveyence under any probable stage of water.

Mr. William Lennox, the efficient Superintendent of the Mechanical Department of the National Fair. has been engaged for the State Fair, and will soon put up in the power hall a steam engine and shafting suitable for driving machinery of all kinds.

Entries may be made with Mr. W. E. Milton, Assistant Secretary, Louisville, at any time prior to the Fair, and he will take charge of small and valuable objects for exhibition.

It will be seen that Mrs. Cunningham has been liberate in bail, by Judge Peabody. This woman rebounds fro ach fall.—Cin. Enquirer.

We once saw a man fall from the top of a four story house, and he rebounded three feet, but it didn't do him any good.

Mrs. Carrie C. Lewis, at a late free love meetg in Ohio, claimed the right of saying who should be the father of each one of her children. Would she allow the poor fellow she might select no liberty of choice in the matter?

THE MINNESOTA STATE CONVENTION .- Both the conventions recently in session at St. Paul adjourned on the 29th ult. They both agreed on the same constitution, which is to be submitted to the people of the territory for their approval or rejection on the 13th of October next. That it will be adopted nearly unanimously is probable. On the same day an election is to be held for members of Congress, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Superior and District Judges, members of the Legislature, and all other offices designated in the Constitution.

The new Constitution prohibits slavery and guarantees liberty of the press, trial by jury, &c. The first Legislature is to consist of thirty-seven Senators and eighty Representatives; pay three dollars per day. There are to be a Governor, Lieutenan's Governor, Attorney General, Secretary of State, and Treasurer elected for two years, and an Auditor for three. The Judiciary is to be vested in a Supreme Court, District Courts, Courts of Probate, Justices of the Peace, and such other Courts, inferior to the Supreme Court, as the Legislature may establish by a two-thirds vote; all Judges and Justices to be elected by the people. White male citizens of the United States, twenty-one years of age, residing in the United States one year, and in the State four months next preceding an election, are voters. Also, white persons of 10reign birth, having the above qualifications of age and residence, who shall have legally declared their intention to become citizens; and persons of mixed white and Indian blood, and of Indian blood, under certain regulations. The Legislature may, by a two-thirds vote, pass a general banking law, with stringent restrictions and requirements. St. Paul is to be the seat of government until located elsewhere by the Legisla-

THE CLOSE OF THE MECHANICS' INSTITUTE. The Address of Mr. Kirk .- An unusually brilliant assemblage filled the Mechanics' Institute Hall last night. On every side were seen graceful forms of lovely women, whose sparkling eyes and smilewreathed lips betokened a truly pleasurable occasion. The closing address was delivered at 81/2 o'clock by Mr. Charles D. Kirk. It was listened to attentively by all who could find seats or standing room within reach of the sound of the speaker's voice, which is unfortunately too weak to fill the immense hall, and was evidently untrained in public speaking. We publish this address to-day. It is eloquent, rich in expression, and interesting in historic reminiscences connected with the early history of the mechanic arts in Kentucky. It is peculiarly appropriate for the occasion, and presents many most excellent suggestions in regard to the progress and advancement of the great manufacturing interests of our State.

At the conclusion of the address the awards of premiums were announced, which will be found in our columns to-day. The Exhibition concluded with a splendid banquet in the refreshment saloon of the hall, which was partaken of by the officers of the Institute, the members of the press, and a number of invited guests. Thus has closed the fourth annual exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute. It has been, we believe, more successful than any of the former ones, and has demonstrated the increasing popularity of these exhibitions.

KENTUCKY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE.—The eighth ession of this Institution will commence in Novem ber, and continue four months. There will be a preliminary course of lectures during the month of October.

The museum has been much enlarged and improved, and everything that is necessary to a thorough course in anatomy and surgical diseases has been supplied without regard to expense. In addition to the college museum, the private cabinet of the Professor of Surgery, collected through a series of years at great pains and expense, constitutes an attractive feature in the large collections of this thriving Institution.

The chemical apparatus is the finest in the Mississippi Valley, and contains everything that is essential to a thorough course in the attractive department to which it belongs.

The Faculty is one of the ablest in the Union, and is composed of gentlemen of national reputation in their several departments. It is constituted as fol-

M. Goldsmith, Professor of Surgery; J. Hardin, Professor of Obstetrics; C. W. Wright, Professor of Chemistry; H. M. Bullitt, Professor of Practice of Medicine; N. B. Marshall, Professor of Materia Medica; W. D. Sterman, Professor of Anatomy; G. W. Bayless, Professor of Physiology; and D. Cummins, Demonstrator of Anatomy.

The college building has been painted and thoroughly refitted, and nothing has been omitted that can in any manner contribute to the comfort of the

The Chicago Times charges that Mayor Wentworth has for months kept that city alive by forced illegal contributions, levied upon the lowest and most degraded classes of society. It has been the custom of the Mayor to obtain from the Comptroller an estimate of how much money he would need during each coming week to meet bills due by the city. Provided with this statement, every Saturday he marks off a certain number of houses of prostitution, and the number of inmates, and apportions the amount desired by the Comptroller among them. He then sends his police to these houses, has the mmates arrested, hands Justice King his table of estimates; the justice fines them to that extent, the money is collected, and the city escapes bankruptcy

In our telegraphic summary of foreign news the arrival of Rev. Mr. Hav and family at Southampton from India is announced. This is Rev. Mr. Gano Hay of Indiana. He was ordained a minister about two years ago, and left for India as a missionary. Mr. H., some ten years ago, was a printer in Much excitement was caused at New Orleans last week by the murder of Mr. John Hart, an esteemed citizen, by one Billy McDonnell. The murderer was committed.

Killed.—We learn that a man named Aleck Smith was shot and instantly killed on Sunday evening last by Mrs. Peredeau, who keeps a house of ill-fame on the road from this place to Frankfort. Mrs. P. was tried before Justices Curry and Challen on Wednesday, and discharged, on the ground that the killing was justifiable.—Tuscumbta Alubanian.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

The river continues to fall slowly. Last evening there were 31/2 feet water in the canal.

A dispatch from Evansville from the captain of the D. A. Given reports the steamers Hickman and Wm. Baird hard aground on Shuffletown bar. The Bay City, which arrived last evening, reports the Seventy-Six and three other boats aground at Flint Island.

There was a large increase in the number of low water boats yesterday, and last evening there were not less than six or eight boats at the wharf bound for Cairo and St. Louis. Rates of freight, in conse quence, declined, and shipments were made from the city wharf at 40 to 50 cents per hundred.

Capt. Duncan, of the W. A. Eaves, has chartered the fine steamer Wm. Dickson, which will take the place of the Eaves in the Henderson trade.

The Sunflower .- This neat little steamer, built here for Capt. Carras for the Yazoo and Sunflower river trade, will leave the city wharf for New Orleans this evening. Her hull, built by Mr. John Cunningham, is 120 feet long, 27 feet beam, 25 feet floor, and 4 feet hold. The machinery was built by Messrs. Roach & Long, and the cabin by Downs, Mitchell, & Co. The painting was very handsome ly done Mr. James Thompson. Wright & Bridgeford did the copper work. Mr. Wing supplied the upholstery, Hite & Small the capets, &c., John Simm the furniture, and Casseday & Hopkins the china and glassware.

The Sunflower draws only 16 inches light and can carry 900 bales of cotton. She is as strongly constructed as wood and iron will admit of. Captain Carras is a worthy gentleman, and this is the second or third boat he has built here. Our business men owe him a liberal patronage, and when she casts off her lines this evening, we hope that she will have as much freight as she can carry and as many passengers as she can accommodate.

The Highflyer, which arrived yesterday, will not return to St. Louis. She is advertised to leave for New Orleans on Friday.

The R. M. Patten arrived from Tennessee river last evening, and we were furnished by Mr. Ed. Harper with a copy of the manifest.

The John Gault also got down last night. Mr. A. G. Walthall, one of her attentive clerks, has our thanks for favors. The Gault is the packet to-day for St. Louis, in place of the Highflyer. She has elegant accommodations, and her two chief officers, Capts. Bunce and Gwathmey, are careful and attentive gentlemen.

The City of Cairo, Poland, Minnetonka, and Flanche Lewis are up for Cairo.

The Superior is the mailboat for Cincinnati to-day and the Umpire is the evening packet.

The new steamer Florilda will leave for St. Louis o-morrow. Mr. Johnson is her clerk and not Mr.

The Dove will leave for Kentucky river at 3 o'clock this evening.

POLICE PROCEEDINGS. -Tuesday, September 15. ames H. Langforth, an old man from Marion co., was arrested last night at the National Hotel. The accused has a wife and seven children, whom he left in Marion county to espouse Miss Lilly-not so pure a vegetable as might be supposed. A farmer from his neighborhood had pursued him, and, offering $100 for his arrest, officers Weatherford and Williams arrested him. When arrested by the police they were en deshabille. The man was held to bail in $200 for three months' good behavior.

J. T. Burton was arrested in the third story of a house on Market, between Brook and Floyd streets. He is suspected of the commission of all manner of enormities. Bail in $400 for six months.

James Kline and M. D. Stewart were drunk and disorderly. $100 for one month.

Ed. Heathorn and the War Eagle were arreste for whipping a free negro. The War Eagle of course was innocent; but poor Heathorn had to go to the Cave for two months. Cave for two months.

Louis Remrich and Mike Allen were released from the workhouse.

John Ruff was intoxicated about the court house last night. Discharged with a lecture.

James Paige had a peace warrant against Henry Streksodth, who threatened to break Paige's neck. Bail in $300 for six months.

Benj. Sacks was charged by America Joyes, his servant girl, of breaking open her trunks and stealinga lot of bed-clothing. The charge was utterly foolish, and the gentleman was discharged.

Mary H. Norris was fined $200 for keeping a hous of ill-fame.

On Monday morning the attachés of the New Albany and Salem Railroad, to the number of about two hundred and fifty, assembled in the machine shop for the purpose of presenting Mr. E. Benjamin, who for several years past has discharged the duties of master mechanic in the establishment, and who has just resigned his position, a testimonial of their appreciation of his worth as a man and a mechanic. Also, for presentation to Mrs. Benjamin a token of their esteem for her as a lady.

The testimonial to Mr. Benjamin consisted of a magnificent gold watch, seal, and chain. The watch is a railroad time-keeper, of the finest make. It cost, with the seal and chain, $317. Inside the case the following words were engraved: "Presented to E. Benjamin, master mechanic, as a token of esteem, by the Attachés of the N. A. & S. R. R., Sept. 1st, 1857.'

The testimonials to Mrs. Benjamin were a beautiful set of jewelry, the cost of which was sixty dollars, and an elegant tea set, which cost about sixtyfive dollars.

The presentation addresses were made by Mr. E. Gregory, and handsomely responded to by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin. The company part with Mr. Benjamin's services reluctantly. Mr. Simpson, a gentleman well qualified for the position, is his succes-

Mail Robbery.—Evidences of a mail robbery having been committed here within the past few days are being brought to light. Some of the workmen belonging to the dredging machine found in the river near Pocahontas bridge a mail bag bearing the Chattanooga label on it. The lock and straps had been left untouched, the robbers having cut a hole in the side of the bag, through which they extracted the contents, and, putting in some heavy stones, threw it into the river. Measures are being taken to discover the perpetrators of this robbery. The threw it into the river. Aleasures are being all to discover the perpetrators of this robbery. The bag is at present in the possession of Mr. J. Moak, to whom we are indebted for the above particulars.

SPLENDID TRUNK .- The most expensive trunk ever made in the United States is the one which received the complimentary premium at the great National fair. It was made in Louisville by our enterprising trunk-maker, D. O'Hare, 486 Market street, one door above Third street, at a cost of $300.

Mr. O'Hare has taken premiums in every instance where he has competed. He has built a trade in Louisvide which has been a benefit to the city. When he commenced business nearly all of the trunks sold here were imported, but he has driven that trade entirely out of our market, as he makes a better article and sells cheaper than can be imported. He has also drawn a trade to our city from all of the surrounding States.

Mr. O'Hare informs us that he employs more hands and sells more trunks than any other house iu

We advise our readers to give him a call and see what Louisville manufacturers can do.

BEAUTIFUL ARTISTIC DESIGNS .- We have inadvertently omitted to add our commendation of the beautiful ornamental centres of stucco work, by that eccomplished artist J. N. Glover, Esq., that have graced the hall of the Mechanics' Institute during the exhibition. They are very elaborate in design and are executed in the highest style of art. They are fit to adorn the finest parlors in the land. Mr. Glover gives his personal attention to his art, and of course excels. Many of our finest edifices have been heightened in their beauty by his skill and

THE SORGHO MOLASSES .- There arrived at New Orleans recently from the Balize, by the steamer Lecomte, a hundred barrels and twenty half barrels of sorgho molasses, which was received by C. DeBlanc, and is held at fifty cents a gallon. It is said to be a very handsome lot, and is looked upon as quite a curiosity. New molasses early in September is certainly a notable novelty in the market.

The papers of New England bring us intelli gence that the potato rot appeared and almost ruined the crop in those sections of the country. Whole fields have been rendered worthless.

facilitation of the California overland mails.

Secretary —, on appeal, has reversed the decision of the Collector of New York, who assessed a duty of 24 per centum, instead of 19, on colored or plaid flannels. The fact of their being colored or printed does not change their character as known in the trade nor remove them from the schedule in which flannels are provided for especially.

The Secretary, on appeal, has reversed the decision of the same Collector, who imposed 24 per centum, instead of 19, on checked flannels. That they are checked, and a larger nap raised on their surface than ordinary, does not change their distinctive character of flannel.

Mail Burned.—On Wednesday last the through mail from the east, having failed to reach this city in time for the mail train on the Central Ohio Railroad, was dispatched on the night express. Shortly after the train left Bellair, the mail was discovered to be on fire, by Mr. Frank Terry, who happened to be in the baggage car, and called the attention of the conductor to the fact. Mr. Terry, says the Zanesville Courier, being a sworn agent of the Department, in presence of the conductor entered the car and immediately took measures to extinguish the fire, and having done this he locked the car. A Zanesville he was compelled to leave, but the mail was sent on to Columbus in charge of another sworn agent, where it will be overhauled. The mail was intended principally for Indianapolis and other points West. Mr. Terry had not the means of ascertaining the amount of damage done. Many packages were badly burnt, but whether any were entirely destroyed is not known.—Wheeling Intel.

A CHANCE FOR FUTURE PROSPERITY .- The Boston Advertiser, in the course of an article discussing the condition of the country and the temporary pressure of the money market, says that "it is at such times as the present that men of soberness and foresight, if they are possessed of even a little solid capital, may lay the foundations of future prosperity. It cannot be doubted that many securities of intrinsic excellence are now selling in the market at far below their actual value. The keen-sighted man of business keeps aloof from the excitements and the trickery of the stock exchange, but watches his opportunity when the arts of the interested have unduly depressed some stock, whose real value he knows, and at that moment he makes an investment which he never regrets. It was when all American securities were cast down in the London market. from the unjust confusion of good with bad, arising from the repudiation of some of the States, that George Peabody made the beginning of that colossal fortune which he has proved that he knows so well how to use. He made no secret, indeed, of the true state of affairs, and publicly as well as privately exerted himself for the maintenance of American credit. It was a sort of poetical justice that rendered the investments by which he proved to the world his confidence in his assertions, the means of his own exceeding great reward, in a solid pecuniary return. A similar reward awaits all those who avail themselves of the chances of the time to make purchases of valuable stocks, not for the purpose of temporary speculation, adding fuel to the flame of excitement, but for purposes of permanent investment, withdrawing from the fire some of the combustible material, and leaving in its stead the solid money, which, by its mere presence, eases the tightness of the market, and which cannot be made to lose its value by chicanery."

A naval court martial will assemble at Washington on the 23d instant, for the trial of Lieut. L. H. Lyne, charged with deserting his ship and disobedience of the President's order in not returning. He left the Cyane at Boston without orders, and presented himself before President Buchanan, asking to be detached. The President thought that an officer absent from his post without permission was not in a proper position to obtain a favor, and ordered him, through Secretary Toucey, immediately back. This order Lieut. Lyne refused to obey. It is whispered outside that he has lately married a wealthy bride, and is indifferent to remaining in the service. The court is to consist of Captains Cunningham and Howard, and Commanders Hunter, Page, Jenkins, Rogers, and Marchand, with J. L. Carlisle as Judge Advocate.

SAD ACCIDENT IN OAKLAND COUNTY, MICH .-Orchard Lake was made on Friday last the scene of a most distressing occurrence. A pic-nic took place upon the island, in the course of which four persons took a small skiff and paddled out into the lake. While amusing themselves the skiff was accidentally overturned and all four were drowned. They were Mrs. Elizabeth Newell, aged sixty-two years; Miss Mary A. Colvin, aged sixteen; Miss Jane Herrington, aged twenty; and Mr. John Owens, aged

FIRE .- On Friday night last about 12 o'clock, the bagging factory of Maj. Thomas H. Waters in Lexington was discovered to be on fire, and a large portion of it was consumed before the fire companies with their apparatus arrived. It was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary.

Dispatches received at Washington, September 12, state that no treaty had been concluded in London touching the Bay Islands. A treaty of commerce, with a clause relative to the Honduras Railroad, had been signed and ratifications exchanged.

More Failures .- The Chicago Press, of Tuesday, says:

THE ELGIN BANK.—Our financial circles were not a little mortified to learn yesterday that the Bank of Elgin had been forced to suspend. It is believed that the bank is mixed up with the suspension of Mr. Yelverton, the President of the People's Bank of New York. It is, therefore, owing to em-barrassments at the East, that the bank was forced to suspend. The bills of the bank are secured by State Stocks, and are taken by all our principal banks as usual. There is no cause therefore for any excitement, and we should not be surprised if the bank were enabled in a few days to go on as usual. Mr. Towns, its President, and one of its principal owners, is a most excellent and reliable man, and all who know him have the fullest confidence that he will act honestly and wisely in this and every other emergency.

Reports unfavorable to the Central Bank of Indinapolis were current this morning.

A Noble Triumph of Art—A few days ago we were shown the model of a bust of the Hon. John C. Breckinridge, just finished by the gifted American sculptor, Thos. D. Jones. Mr. Jones has resided in our midst for a number of months, and during that time has been busily engaged in his noble profession, but in our humble opinion he has excelled all of his previous labors in his last work. If he had never previous labors in his last work. If he had never manifested his genius in other years and in other departments of his art, his recent achievement alone would entitle him to rank with the greatest sculptors of the age. Mr. Jones has devoted many years of his life to constant and unremitting toil and study, and although he has not yet reaped the pecuniary reward to which his splendid talents and no less splendid labors entitle him, we feel accurate that it is recently the splendid talents and no less splendid labors entitle him, we feel accurate that it is recently the splendid talents and no less splendid labors entitle him, we feel accurate that it is recently the splendid talents and no less splendid talents are the splendid talents and no less splendid talents are the splendid talents and no less splendid talents are the splendid talents and no less splendid talents are the splendid talents ar did labors entitle him, we feel assured that it is cer-tainly reserved for him in the future. His great modesty, coupled with a genuine detestation of that charlatanry which so often foists unworthy artists upon the public, has heretofore seriously operated against him, but it can no longer prevent him from occupying that pre-eminent position among the great of his profession which he so justly deserves.

Lexington Observer. An instance of absence of mind occurred a day or two since, where a profound explorer into the mys-teries of chemical science burnt his nose by a fluid lamp with which he came in contact. We met him amp with which he came in contact. We met him a day or two afterwards, with a large plaster of salve on his nose, and asked him about his hurt.—
"It looks bad, don't it?" said he. We assured him it didn't look anything else, and asked him if it hurt him much when it was roasting. "Ne'er a bit," replied he; "in fact I didn't feel it at all, I was so absorbed in my experiments, and the work." was so absorbed in my experiments; and though kept smelling something like burnt meat, I imagine kept smelling something like burnt meat, I magnetic was a dinner cooking somewhere, and kept right on till my student told me my nose was on fire, and putting my hand upon it I found that it was even so I thrust it in a bucket of water and extinguished it; but it has left the mark, you see.'

Mr. Almon Peabody, a well known denizen of Bangor, Me., complained of "nothing to do" and no pay for it. He offered to do anything for a quad pro quo. Mr. David Tenney took him at his offer, and hired him at one dollar a day, for three day?, to march from Granite block, on Last Market square, to Dodge's Hotel, in regimentals, with which he was furnished, and may now be seen performing his task with plume waving and gun at shoulder arms. It is in the bargain that he may have the privilege of "wetting his whistle" at the town pump, but must not imbibe any fluid of superior strength.

FROM UTAH.—Files of the Descret News to Aug. 12th have been received. The News of the 5th uses the following lively expressions in reference to the annulling of Hiram Kimball's mail contract from Independence to Salt Lake:

But hush—or some thin skinned, ignorant, tyrannical booby may call our remarks rebellious and treasonable. Reared among the Green Mountains of Vermont and the Granite Hills of New Hampshire, and familiar with the in.ernal corruptions, abominations, superstitions, and wire-working of this generation, and also with our rights and privileges as an American born citiour rights and privileges as an American born citizen, we shall use the "freedom of speech" as guaranteed in Article 1 in accordance with the dictates of our own conscience and the judgment we may be blessed with. Remarks of President Brigham Young—The object of the Utah Expedition.—What is now the news cir culated throughout the United States? That Capt. Gunnison was killed by Brigham Young, and that Babbitt was killed on the plains by Brigham Young and this Danite band. What more? That Brigham Young has killed all the men who have died between the Missouri river and California. I do not say that President Buchanan has any such idea, or the officers of the troops who are reported to be on their cers of the troops who are reported to be on their way here, but such are the newspaper stories. Such reports are in the bellows, and editors and politicians are blowing them out.

According to their version I am guilty of the death of every man, woman, and child that has died between the Missouri river and the California gold mines, and they are coming here to chastise me. The idea makes me laugh, and when do you think they will get a chance? Catching is always before hanging. They understand, you know, that I had gone north and intended to leave this place with such as would follow me, and they are coming to declare a withing I is their declare. clare a jubilee. It is their desire to say to the people, "you are free, you are not under the bondage of Brigham Young; you need wear his yoke no longer; now let us get drank, fight, play at cards, and race horses; and every one of you women turn out to be whores and become associated with the civilization of Christendom." That is the freedom they Brightam Will Dissolve the Union.—The time must come when there will be a separation between this kingdom and the kingdoms of this world, even in every point of view. The time must come when this kingdom must be free and independent from all other kingdoms. Are you prepared to have the thread cut to-day? thread cut to-day?

Brigham Loves to See the Women Happy.—I will cknowledge with Brother Kimball, and I know it is the case with him, that I am a great lover of wo-men. In what particular? I love to see them hap-py, to see them well fed and well clothed, and I love to see them cheerful. I love to see their faces and talk with them, when they talk in righteousness, but as for anything more, I do not care. There are probably but few men in the world who care about the private society of women less than I do.

I have told them, and tell them, and talk to them, and talk about it, and ask them, am I in the line of my duty while I can feed women and children who do nothing but sit and fold their hands and wear out their clothing, and dress them in finery and pamper them, and they get so that good beef, pork, bread, butter, cheese, tea, coffee, and sugar, with fruit and all kinds of garden sauce, are no rarity to them at all, and their appetites are poor and they cannot eat? That is the case with me in my family. If there is any trial upon me it is to know whether I am in the line of my duty in this matter.

What Elder George A. Smith would do if he had Command of Thunder and Lightning.—Under these circumstances, as big a cowarl as I am, I would say what I pleased, and for one thing I would say that every man that had anything to do with such a filthy, unconstitutional affair was a damned scoundrel. There is not a man, from the President of the United States to the editors of their sanctums, clear down to the low-bred letter-writers in this Territory, but would rob the coppers from a dead nigger's eyes if they had a good opportunity.

If I had the command of thunder and lightning I would never let one of the damned scoundrels get here alive.

THE ADVENTUROUS ESCAPE OF A BRITISH SOLDIER FROM DELIII. To the Editor of the Daily News:

Sir: As below, I beg to hand you an extract from a letter from my brother in India who most miraculously saved himself from death:

a letter from my brother in India who most miraculously saved himself from death:

"Now, my dear fellow, I am going to tell you how I got out of Delhi. Nothing but my strong arm and determination to escape or die could have prevented my being either shot or mercilessly robbed, stripped, and then stabbed; but they roused my temper—that temper which all my life was my bane, but this time was the means of saving my life. If a man with all the courage in the world had been in my situation I do not think he would have attempted what I did; and I should not had not my passion mastered my reason. But to begin: When the alarm was first given that the troops in Delhi had mutinied I was enjoying my meal, but from the atrocities that a friend of mine came in and told me had been committed I left my eating, and, looking out, saw seven or eight men dragging a female down the street by the hair of her head, which was very long and black.

"I could not look upon tha without a feeling of horror, not of what would become of myself—I was a man—but for the other poor women who were at Delhi at the time. I went into the house and soon returned with a rifle, intending to inflict punishment on one, at least, of the miscreants; but I no sooner appeared on the verandah than I was shot at by a black; but he missed me, and for which kind consideration I shot him through the heart. About a on one, at least, of the miscreants; but I no sooner appeared on the verandah than I was shot at by a black; but he missed me, and for which kind consideration I shot him through the heart. About a dozen ruffians now made an attack on my house, and began battering on my door. I called my friend who had given me the news, and giving him a revolving pistol, together with my two servants each armed with a gun, and myself armed with a revolving pistol in one hand and a sword in the other (these were the arms of poor Harry), I walked boldly down to the door and let them in—as I opened the door I retreated behind it. The blacks came rushing in pell mell, and were rushing up the passage ing in pell mell, and were rushing up the passage when my friend and two servants came from their concealment and fired at them steadily, which brought three of them down, then clubbing their guns, they rushed on the surprised blacks. "At the moment the attack was made by my

"At the moment the attack was made by my coup-de-main, I stepped out from my hiding-place behind the door, and shot the hindmost villain down with my pistol, and then with all the fury of ten thousand devils I went to work with my sword, wounding here, killing there, and shooting those that stabbed at me. At last there were but five blacks left, and they forced by me and gained the street. I, following close behind them, shut the door violently, thereby shutting them out. I went back and found that all three of my assistants had been so mortally wounded that I despaired of their lives, and my fears were quickly dispelled by two been so mortally wounded that I despaired of their lives, and my fears were quickly dispelled by two of them dying shortly after in the most frightful agony; the other—my dear friend Hancock—dying shortly after. After our killing so many of their men, I knew that the house would be attacked and no mercy shown, so I discolored my face, and assumed the garb of one of the dead blacks, and, as I could speak their language, I thought I should pass

"I got out by a back way and begun halloing and "I got out by a back way and begun halloing and hooting, and running, and going about where the other blacks were, and so by those means avoided suspicion, incurring the greatest danger of being recognized. I met two or three times with a single black in a lonely place, and such was my hatred of them that I could not restrain myself from killing them. One time, after I had killed a man and was looking over him, a body of blacks came up and would have struck me to the earth had I not called out fiercely in their language that I would avenge out fiercely in their language that I would avenge him, and suddenly starting from my standing place called out to an imaginary fellow to stop, swearing he was the murderer. I bounded away, the others with me, but failed to catch the fellow. When the blacks made a sortie I smuggled myself in with them, and came over to the side of my friends, where I was warmly received. I got wounded in the engagement, but revenged myself upon them, for I fought with all the desperation of madness."

The above is a very exciting account of how a very desperate man got out of the hands of the rebels, and, if you think it worth your while, you cau give it publicity. I am, &c., INDIAN.

THE DIFFICULTIES OF AN ASTRONOMER.--"A favorable wind arises and dissipates the vapors in the very direction where some important phenomenon will manifest itself, and is only to last a few seconds. The astronomer, exposed to all the transitions of weather (it is one of the conditions of accuracy), the body painfully bent, directs the telescope of a great graduated circle in haste upon the star that he impatiently awaits. His lines for measuring are as spider's threads. If in looking he makes a mistake of half the thickness of one of these threads, the observation is good for nothing; judge what his un-easiness must be; at the critical moment, a puff of wind occasioning a vibration in the artificial light adapted to his telescope, the threads become almost invisible; the star itself, whose rays reach the eye through atmospheric strata of various density, temperature, and refrangibility, will appear to oscillate so much as to render the true position of it almost ur assignable; at the very moment when extremely to insure correctness of measures, all become to insure correctness of measures, all becomes con-fused, either because the eye-piece gets steamed with vapor, or that the vicinity of the very cold metal occasions an abundant secretion of tears in the eye applied to the telescope; the poor observer is then exposed to the alternative of abandoning to some other more fortunate person than himself the ascertaining a phenomenon that will not recur during his lifetime, or introducing into the science results of problematical correctness. Finally, to complete the observation, he must read off the microscopical divisions of the graduated circle, and for what opti-cians call indolent vision (the only sort that the an-cients ever required) must substitute strained vision, which in a few years brings on blindness."

The celebrated trotting stallion, Membrino Chief, was sold at James B Clay's sale, on Monday last, for $5,020. Willis F. Jones, Esq., of Woodford, was the purchaser, at whose farm he may hereafter be found. This horse is distinguished on the trotting turf, having made his mile in 2:33, and is one of the finest breeders in the United States. Mr. Jones paid a high price for him, but he has a noble animal, and one which deservedly occupies the first position among horses of his class.

ACCOUNTED FOR .- It is now definitely ascertained what broke the telegraphic cable. A correspondent of the Philadelphia North American write: "For years I have been hoping that some of the knights of the pen would take up the cudgels and chastise this literary pretender—Martin Farquhar Tupper —who seizes every possible opportunity to write a very bad sonnet and get it printed. He really does have his say in everything. His last sonnet on the Atlantic cable, there is no doubt, was the cause of its breaking. Nothing on earth could stand such a strain as that."

Dr. King's Dispensary.

DR. A. KING, a practitioner of New York for the last thirty years, has opened a Dispensary on Market, between First and Second, nearly opposite the Graham House, Louisville, for the treatment of Private Diseases, such as Genorrhea, Syphilis, and all diseases of the skin and other derangements growing out of neglect or imperfect cure. His long experience and success enable him to act with confidence. All those who may confide their cases to him may rest assured of having the disease effectually cured and every vestige of the difficulties perfectly eradicated from their constitutions.

STRICTURES of old or recent date effectually cured in a few days by an operation which causes no pain. Where a stricture exists, general derangement of the whole constitution must ensue, a continuance of which will bring on a train of symptoms to be dreaded, and will undermine the constitution and cause premature old age.

SEMINAL WEAKNESS.—Particular attention will be given to this disease and all the consequences growing out of it, brought on, in many cases, by the destructive habits of inconsiderate youth and excessive indulgence of the passions, which undermine the constitution, rendering the subject unfit for either business or society, and causing premature old age.

EF Persons abroad, by writing and stating their cases, with a fee enclosed (post paid), can have the medicine sent to their address, with necessary directions for using the same.

A Case of Highway Robbery .- Adam Schweizer and J. De Marsh were arraigned on a charge of robbing E. L. Nevitt, of New Haven, Ky. It appears that Nevitt was drunk last night. About 1 o'clock he encountered Schweizer and De Marsh on Preston street, near Market, and asked them where the Union Hotel was. They volunteered to take him there, representing themselves to be watchmen, and searched him. They took his watch and money. Nevitt by this time became aware of his situation, and called out lustily for "watch." Officers Cross and Tiller came to his aid, and after a short search discovered Schweizer and De Marsh secreted in a coffee-house. They marched the robbers off to jail. On their way down to jail, Schweizer was permitted to step aside into an open lot. On reaching the jail the prisoners were searched, but nothing of value was found in their possession, though Nevitt averred that he had lost his watch, the chain of which had been cut, and $27 in money. The officers then searched the lot at which Schweizer had stopped, and found Nevitt's watch under a plank .-The accused were committed in default of giving $600 bail, each, to answer a charge of felony.

A POCKET-BOOK GRABBER ARRESTED .- About 1 o'clock te-day a young man who gave his name as Robert Grader attacked Mrs. Lavielle, on Gray street, and took from her a portmonaie, which she had in her hand. Officer Tiller was close by and he gave the fellow, who fled, chase and arrested him. Grader stated to the officer that he had followed Mrs. L. from Main street, where he had first observed her. He says he is from Cleveland, and has been stopping at Schoefer's, on Main street, near Twelfth. This is the third time.

HEAVY ROBBERY-$2,448 STOLEN.-The state room of Mr. E. W. Brooks, on the steamer Jos. H. Oglesby, lying at the St. Louis wharf, was entered by a thief on Monday at noon, and his trunk broken open and robbed of $2,448, of which $1,148 was in Missouri bank bills and the remainder in $50 and $20 gold pieces. Mr. Brooks had only drawn the money a few hours previous to the robbery. He is from Ohio and was on his road to Kansas. The money stolen was proceeds of the sale of a farm and stock and was all he possessed in the world.

[From the Boston Traveler.] THE BOOT, SINCE AND, LEATHER TRADE OF BOSTON.
Boston is now the largest shoe market in the world, and her sales exceed by millions of dollars those of any other city on the globe. Recently there has been a canvas- made by a number of gentlemen thoroughly acquainted with the trade, and it has been ascertained that there are 218 wholesale and iobbing hoot, shoe, and leather dealers in Boston.

The attention of Boston merchants has, of lat , been engaged in the endeavor to secure the more prompt transmission of goods, and the board of trade has, by its committee, made arrangements with the different roads and lines of steamers whereby direct, continuous, and expeditious routes have been formed, circulating throughout the Western and Southern States; and it has also, iz connection with its Inland Insurance Company, authorised agents at prominent parts in the West who give particular attention to forwarding all Boston goods which may be lying in freight houses at different stations; thus securing to Boston treight a more speedy transit.

These facilities for the shipment and transit of goods, together with the many superior advantages which Boston, as a producer, offers for the sale of them, give entire satisfaction to Western and Southern merchants, as they can rely upon receiving their goods expeditiously, and upon buying them cheaper than they can be bought in any other market.

EVENING BULLETIN.

A telegraphic dispatch to White & Young states that the notes of the Ontario Bank at Utica were thgown out yesterday by the New York banks

ADDRESS OF CHARLES D. KIRK, ESQ. BEFORE THE MICHANICS' INSTITUTE,

Lehvered on Tuesday Evening, Sept. 15. A scene like this of which we have been witnesses to-night—of which none of us have been passive, but all interested spectators day after day and night after night for more than one of the twelve monthly cycles through which the year passes—is calculated to stir our innermost feelings, and to awaken whatever of city and State pride may be in our natures. But, when surveying this magnificent hall, with its decorations—evergeen as we trust the existence of But, when surveying this magnificent hall, with its decorations—evergreen, as we trust the existence of this Institute may be—with its myriad lights, lustrous as is the fame of Louisville—with its graceful and substantial works of art and mechanism, beautiful to win the eye and strong to endure the claims of labor as the products of our artizans ever are—with its throngs of half angelic loveliness, wearing the perennial bloom of beauty upon their cheeks, and the never faltering step of grace in their movements—there comes a thought which fills the brain with a flood of memories and thrills the heart with more than the symphonies of music and elevates the mind with sentiments of an ennobling character—one chief, one leading, one absorbing and triumphmind with sentiments of an ennobling character—one chief, one leading, one absorbing and triumphing thought. It is a thought to rally us in the present hour of rejoicing—a thought that links us with the past—that suggests lessons of the deepest import, lessons fit to be engraven in letters of light, so that they may blaze upon our State, with half shameful, half cheerful rays. The thought of what Kentucky might have been, of what she is, of what Kentucky shall be, through the united, energetic efforts of you, gentlemen of the Mechanics' Institute, and your intelligent converters in the great cause of human telligent co-workers in the great cause of human Progress.

This is an exhibition of the mechanical, manufacture of Kentucky. It is

This is an exhibition of the mechanical, manufacturing, and artistic interests of Kentucky. It is not, sorrowfully be it said, a complete expose of our industrial resources, but it must be regarded as a test of our abilities, as an index of our willingness to contribute to the vast fund of wealth which the Union possesses in its workshops. Is it worthy of Kentucky?—of her history, the most brilliant in many respects of any of her conf-derated sisters—of her unlimited powers to produce and create whatever the earth yields and man has the capacity to mold and fashion? Think of a Commonwealth for sixty-five years playing a most prominent part in the Government of the Republic—for twenty years previous to her admission to the Union the home of thousands of gallant, daring, industrious, skillful men—possessing within her own borders every element of wealth necessary for the creation of an empire—whose men are the paragons of their sex—whose soil is inexhaustible in its fertility—whose deep, pellucid rivers penetrate almost every like it is their pellucid rivers penetrate almost every county— whose beds of coal and fields of iron lie hid in their primeval obscurity in all of her ranges of mountains, and whose harvests are now flinging out their gol-den banners to be kissed by the bright autumnal sun of noonday, and moistened by the tears of nightfall —harvests rich as ever cheered a farmer's heart plenteous as Providence need ever vouchsafe to la-

All this is said with no desire to reflect upon the efforts of Louisville mechanics in this exhibition, for they have been most noble. But I say it with shame for my State, that one of her years, of her wealth, of her resources, of her unquestionable abilities to produce and to manufacture, is so miserable a laggard in the march of improvement. It seems as if while the sun shipes most considiution. seems as if while the sun shines most genially our population is content to shelter itself beneath the shade of our lovely forests, and watch, with listless eye, the car of progress march onward in its mighty and triumphant course. Ah, this is a pitiable sight. Scarcely worse and more depressing is the picture of those ancient and once however requires the property and the state of the search of the searc those ancient and once honored republics, enervated by luxury, sunk in slothfulness, and shrinking aghast with timidity, all their former glory, bravery, and enterprise departed-while hordes of barbarians strong, brawny, muscular men, devastate their cities, desecrate the temples of religion, and defile all that art has consecrated and taste beautified.

But can no apology be offered for the snail's pace at which Kentucky has advanced? Has her career been marked by no palliating circumstances? Can we present nothing in mitigation of the supineness which for so many years has drowsed the energies and palsied the hands of our people. The case is one of a remarkable character; but it

The case is one of a remarkable character; but it admits of explanation.

And this leads us to a consideration of the immediate topic of remark which it is thought would be especially apposite to the occasion—the Past and Fature of Mechanism in Kentucky.

Sixty years ago, Kentucky was the most attractive and promising section of the Republic. The unparalleled energies of her pioneers had secured the State from any further Indian incursions; day by day the sunlight of civilization came breaking with its golden beams through the interlacing canebrakes and tangled forests—everywhere upon shaded knolls sprang the cabin of the farmer into existence—the click-clack of the mill was heard by every stream—from green groves, God's first temples, ascended voices of prayer and praise—all was peace, all prosperity, and the future brightened with hope's most blessed signs. The spirit and tastes of the people, though preeminently agricultural, were not exclusively as Environted. though preeminently agricultural, were not exclusively so. Emigrants from the Atlantic States and from European countries brought with them manufacturing skill and the machinery whereby to create. They settled in our chief towns, and themselves opened up new settlements, where were to be heard the hum and bustle of that active, useful life which is peculiarly the mechanic's. Upon the waters of the Elkhorn, as early as 1792, the first paper-mill was erected; powder-mills were built in various places; Lexington became a permanent seat of manufactures, and there the first rail ever made west of the Alleghanies was forged. Factories for bagging and bale rope abounded. The region about the Blue Licks glowed continually with the fires of a hundred salt furnaces. In numerous spots iron was delved from the earth and fashioned into whatever forms of usefulness the diversified wants of man desired. At Frankfort, sloop after sloop, with keen prows and wide decks, were launched into the crystal and limwide decks, were launched into the crystal and limpid waters of the Kentucky—hull and spars of Kentucky oak—rigging of Kentucky flax and hemp, and then laden exclusively with Kentucky products; and dispatched to the far-off South, the seat of Spanish and French empire, on profitable voyages. Vineyards hung clustering with their rich and purple fruitage upon hundreds of hillsides, and colonies of industrious Swiss crushed from the luscious grape wine that would have rivaled the old Falernian in its mellowness. Nearly twenty years before Fulits mellowness. Nearly twenty years before Ful-ton's discovery of the application of steam to navi-gation, John Fitch demonstrated publicly the same great scientific truth, and operated with success a model steamboat on the waters of the small stream that runs through the town of Lexington. That model yet remains in the museum of Transylvania University, in itself a complete vindication of the priority of Fitch's invention. Fulton's name is now priority of Fitch's invention. Fulton's name is now a household word, while Fitch sleeps in unmonumented obscurity in the graveyard of Bardstown. The incense of the world's praise yields its sweetest perfumes to the memory of Fulton. Only a loving sweet briar gives odor to the air that in summer time lingers about the spot where Fitch lies-

"Unwept, unhonored, and unsung." But the chief feature of that civilization was the introduction of the press into Kentucky. The 17th of August, 1787, is mentioned in no calendar as a of August, 1787, is mentioned in no calendar as a day of note, yet it deserves especial consideration from the people of this State. It is the anniversary of the issue of the first printed sheet within the borders Commonwealth. Such a date is of no minor importance. It is an era in the history of any Colony or State. Hereafter the isolation previously existing diminishes. Then does the great world become nearer, and its continual whirl of excitement—its increasing activity—its furnedl and confusion—its —their mental visions embrace a wider range of observation. The edges of inquiry and investigation are sharpened. New enterprises are set on foot. Commerce is invigorated, and every branch of industry receives an impetus. Pleasure is not only thus deffused among all classes, but profit, actual profit—that which may be reckoned in dollars and cents. The influence of a newspaper in a new settlement is not exaggerated nor over estimated. Instances fully corroborating all that has been here said are to be found in abundance. Potent as is the press in the most highly refined and prosperous portions of the globe, it is likewise so on the edge of the desert, and, accompanying the borderer's gun and the emigrant's ax, sows the seeds of civilization in the very midst of uncultivated nature.

To John Bradford belongs the great honor of hav--their mental visions embrace a wider range of ob-

To John Bradford belongs the great honor of hav To John Bradford belongs the great honor of having "set up" the first printing office and newspaper in the State (then District) of Kentucky. Could we, upon one of these bright September days, transfer ourselves into the by-gone days of '87, and peep in upon his precincts, how novel would the scene appear to eyes accustomed to the wonderful improvements in the "art preservative of arts!" In the goodly town of Lexington, beside an ill-defined road, called by courtesy a street, and hedged in by a house here and there, sits the little cabin of hewn logs. How primitive in appearance this temple to Faustus, this monumental pile to Guttenburg, in the wilds of America! Amid the severe simplicity and imposing grandeur of nature's works, art, rude wilds of America! Amid the severe simplicity and imposing grandeur of nature's works, art, rude though it be, has an exotic look. What need have these brave settlers of types and ink and paper? Are there not lessons full of wisdom to be found in their daily pathways leading them up to nature's God? And why disturb their calm serenity of mind with news from all nations? Why breathe upon their ears the hoarse murmurs of a contentious world? But, within that cabin, shaded by so many huge oaks, is the germ of Kentucky newspaporial literature. In a corner stands the press, entirely wooden, cumbersome, and uncouth. At a window, or, rather, an aperture between the logs, are a few cases of type; while, in typographic confusion, the other implements are strewn about.— Bradford is seated upon a block of wood surveying the scene. He is no printer—merely an amateur.—

Pro bono publico he performed a wearisome journey Pro bono publico he performed a wearisome journey to the east of the Alleghanies, made a large outlay of capital, and, returning with his material to Kentucky, became the pioneer editor of the West. It is not often that we see, in this day, such manifesta-tions of disinterested public spirit. No pecuniary profit tempted him, for that was a remote and improfit tempted him, for that was a remote and improbable contingency in the enterprise. But notice: the solitary journeyman printer and the "devil" (or dtaboles, as the Greek hath it) are busy with their first paper. Very often does the door open upon its leathern hinges, while the curious pry about, investigating the mysteries; and little children, as they play beneath the neighboring trees, point to the printers' quarters with reverence in their manner. At last the form is ready for the press, and, after many delays, the boy daubs his buckskin ball in the ink, and re-daubs it on the face of the type; the press creaks, and lo! born to the light of day is the "Kentucky Gazette"—the parent of that long and illustrious line of newspapers which have since then lent glory and fame to the State.

That afternoon the denizens of Lexington were

That afternoon the denizens of Lexington were treated to a newspaper of home manufacture. As the evening sun cast its long shadows, the accustomed assemblage of town talkers convened about the ed assemblage of town talkers convened about the tavern door, and the Gazette was read aloud to the gaping multitude. Strange comments were made on this literary phenomenon, and every man had a different opinion as to the success and utility of the paper. To hundreds of homes in the deep forests and beside the running streams the little sheet went a messenger of peace—a bearer of good tidings—for it whispered of the homes left behind and gave promise of a restitution of many of the best features of their native places. As the post-boy weekly disof their native places. As the post-boy weekly distributed the papers, the stalwart hunter, attired in the picturesque costume of the woods, forgot the game, and, leaning upon his trusty weapon, perused the current news and felt the strangeness of sympathy with the outside world steal in upon him. He became again a man with interests and passions linkbecame again a man with interests and passions link-ing him to his fellow men and their pursuits. The backwoods dealer in produce and articles of merchandise bent over his rude counter and glanced over the market reports with much of the sang from which the dealer now-a-days exhibits who sits in his elegant counting-room, and, amid the wreathed clouds of his Havana cigar, notes the prices current. The housewife, in the lone hours of the day, dropped domestic duties for awhile and culled from this ged domestic duties for awhite and cancer from this dingy parterre of the world's events an astonishing incident or marriage or death. All classes of society then felt that a new pleasure had sprung up in their midst, and wondered at having so long existed with-out that sine qua non of civilization, the newspaper.

out that sine qua non of civilization, the newspaper.

John Bradford, the founder of the first newspaper in Kentucky, now sleeps his long sleep. No storied urn nor graven obelisk commemorates his public spirit, and even the great fact of his life, to which allusion has been made, is known to but few. Surely some testimonial to his services should survive him. Far less worthy heroes—for he was a hero in truth—have their names and deeds emblazoned on costly marble.

But perhaps I have elaborated this picture too much. Perhaps I have transcended my position and wearied your patience with the recital of a story in which you feel no interest. Pardon me, ladies and gentlemen. Charge it all to my esprit de corps. I might not thus have trespassed upon your attention with the history of this important era in the settlement of our State were it not that I too my of settlement of our State were it not that I too am of the craft, and that I, if I have any right to address a Mechanics' Instructe, that right is derived from the fact of my being a brother mechanic—a printer boy, and I thank God for the honored station!

Such was Kentucky sixty years ago. Never did Such was kentucky sixty years ago. Never did a people or a State enter upon a career under more propitious auspices; and alas, that a Kentuckian should say it, never did a people or a State use their magnificent advantages with such marked forgetfulness. Kentucky should be this day the great manufacturing State of the Union. Her coal fields and iron beds should be yielding daily millions of bushels and tons. Every hill top should be crowned with a temple of religion or education. Not a mountain but should be tunnelled, not a stream but should be spanned, not a gorge but should be arched not a be spanned, not a gorge but should be arched, not a valley but should echo to the rush and roar of the steam car.

But we have fallen far short of the fulfillment of our great destiny. Why so? Briefly, there appears to have been two leading causes operating very seriously against the material advancement of Ken-

The first of these is POLITICS. Just subsequent to the adoption of the second constitution of the State, that is about the close of the last century, there arose an intense political excitement. Affairs of great an intense political excitement. Affairs of great moment were involved. Discussions were rife. Every man with the least loquacity mounted the stump. Every man sought office. A perfect mania seized the people, which was farther increased by the Burr and Wilkinson conspiracy discoveries—then still more increased by the difficulties with Great Britain. Since then Kentucky has been chiefly addicted to politics. It is the great vice of her old and her young men. They have neglected in a great measure all ether pursuits to chase that tignus futurs. They have sought political station and influence at all hazards. Industry has been neglected and the promotion of the great interests of the Commonwealth rendered secondary to the furtherance of petty partisan schemes. To the credit of the State, be it said, it has always exercised a leading, if not controlling, influence in the government of the nation. It has given to the Republic the services of a Clay, himself the prince of orators—peerless among Senators—the foremost of statesmen; and it is now serving the Republic with the genius and wisdom and high-toned chivalry of a Breckinridge:

"Clarum et venerabile nomen." moment were involved. Discussions were

"Clarum et venerabile nomen."
But, what, if all our great politicians and states-nen and orators had devoted even some fragment of State. Hereafter the isolation previously existing diminishes. Then does the great world become nearer, and its continual whirl of excitement—its increasing activity—its turmoil and confusion—its joys and sorrows—its benevolent pulsations and its wicked throbbings appeal to the human sympathies. The wilderness and solitude lose their startling wildness and impressive loneliness. Life appears breathed into the inanimate. Men seem bound to their fellows at a distance by close ties. The newspaper seems as a curious ligament to connect the most remote, in feeling and opinion. The desires and actions, thoughts and impulses of the multitude are communicated through this medium. By thus interchanging views men's ideas become more liberal politics-ready with the pen to assail the wrong and uphold the right—both honest and noble-hearted men, but so addicted to the dissipation of politics that immersed in that they forget all things save that immersed in that they forget all things save the use of their editorial weapons and the maintenance of their editorial honor.

With such examples as the past thus afforded, and the present continually offers, is it strange that every childing in the State indulges in politics—that the boys and the girls forget their playthings to huzza for the candidates of their seniors, and that men of business neglect that business to run wild after the nominee of their parties and the support of principles concerning which they know nothing, save that they are in their platform? We must rid our State of this abuse of talents, and particularly must that they are in their platform? We must rid our State of this abuse of talents, and particularly must we abate the nuisance of fled clark, politicians, such as we saw traversing the State that unmer.

But there is another cause which has operated to retard the material prosperity of Kentucky. This is the pretension and influence of PSEUDO ARISTOCRACY. Most of us were descended from the first families of Virginia, or else wear a patrician name that belonged once upon a time to some leading family in one of the Atlantic States. Therefore we claim to be pure, thorough-bred, full-blooded aristocrats. Others have achieved wealth and station, and thereby assume to lord it over their less fortunate fellows. Still others achieved wealth and station, and increby assume to lord it over their less fortunate fellows. Still others have fall-n upon fat offices and been fed at the public crib, and necessarily their descendants are not to condescend to an equality with those people of low degree who work out their own temporal salvation. This feeling has been a great bane—a great curse to Kentucky. It has caused many a noble and talented voung man to eschew the honest pursuits of labor and Kentucky. It has caused many a noble and talented young man to eschew the honest pursuits of labor and take upon himself the habit of lawyers or physicians. Such has been popular prejudice—the folly and wickedness of fashionable decrees that they could not assume the noble toga of a workingman, and hence have rushed into professional life—a few and nence have rushed into professional nite—a tew succeeding, while thousands miserably fail.

Nothing is more despicable than this sham aristocratic feeling. Yet if we must have the plant in our Kentucky soil let it grow and blossom and bloom in full maturity. Let us establish a Herald's college and invest all these people with coats of arms. To be significant, upon the coach pannels of one of these noble families, as it rolled along in stately grandeur, amid the admiring crowds of gaping plebians, there should blaze in aristocratic colors a row of dirty whisky bottles and dirtier "horns," relieved by the graceful figures of a crowd of loafers in the various stages of intoxication. Upon another, would flash in haughty blazonry, a deck of cards and a dice-box; or in the language of heraldry, the Knave of Hearts rampant upon a ground argent. These devices would tell their own stories. They would indicate the origin of the aristocratic proprietors. succeeding, while thousands miserably fail.

stocratic proprietors. For wealth obtained by honest industry we en-tertain the highest respect—especially when used by its possessor in a manner calculated to secure his own comfort and at the same time minister to those by whom he is surrounded. But if there is a being who dishonors God's footstool by his presence, and makes mankind think meanly of man, it ence, and makes mankind think meanly of man, it is he who, having climbed the ladder of prosperity to the highest round, kicks it from beneath him, and arrogates to himself the occupancy of a higher sphere than his more worthy, because in most instances his more honest associates.

There is, however, ladies and gentlemen, an aristocracy which you all are called upon to honor and respect. It is the Aristocracy of Intellect and Labor. Its patent of nobility will be perpetuated when the plumed heroes of the battle field and their titles shall be forgotten. It has emancipated imprisoned thought and sent it on its heaven-born mission to redeem and disembrall the human race from its to redeem and disenthrall the human race from its bondage of ignorance and bigotry. It whitens our seas with its wings of commerce—it traverses our States with the speed of lightning—It builds our marts of trade and tills our harvest fields. It yields homage only to worth, and knows no descent beyond the bonest matrons who gave high to its supporters.

homage only to worth, and knows no descent beyond the honest matrons who gave birth to its supporters and nestled close to their bosoms the young, glorious life of American liberties.

For such aristocracy I claim your homage. You, gentlemen of the Kentucky Mechanics' Institute, are a part and parcel of it, and standing here to-night, at the close of your fifth year's labors, I feel as if it were my duty, on behalf of our city and State, to invest you, one and all, with the knighthood of true manliness. May you ever wear that insignia upon your brows—and may you, Mr. President, and your associates in office, cherish with peculiar fidelity your duties toward Louisville, toward Kentucky, and toward the Union.
